NEW PCC STUDENTS

NEW PCC STUDENTS

First-time College Students

This chapter presents data about students for whom PCC was their first college destination. These students are referred to as new or first-time college students. In Fall 2007, 5,526 new students enrolled in credit classes at PCC. This represents approximately 21% of the total PCC student body. The number of first-time college students increased by 7% from Fall 2006 to Fall 2007.

Residency Status

In Fall 2007, a little over two-thirds (68%) of first-time college students lived in another California Community College District (CCCD) area. About 26% of first-time college students came from within the Pasadena Area Community College District (PACCD) area. Approximately 6% came from outside California, including those from outside the U.S.

Gender

Males and females were almost evenly represented among first-time college students at PCC. However, females outnumber males in the student body as a whole by 8% (see Table 2-2 in Chapter 2). This difference in gender distribution occurs because males drop out of college at a higher rate than females.

Age

Not surprisingly, first-time college students are younger than the overall student body. Eighty-four percent of first-time students in Fall 2007 were under 20. There has been a steady decline of the number of students between the ages of 20 and 24, from 13% in Fall 2004 to 9% in Fall 2007. Similarly, the percentage of PCC credit students 20 to 24 years of age decreased from 36% in Fall 2005 to 35% in Fall 2007. Only 4% of first-time students were 30 years of age or older.

Ethnicity

Hispanic and Asian/Pacific Islander were the largest ethnic groups represented among first-time college students at PCC. Since Fall 2003, the proportions of most ethnic groups have been relatively stable. The Asian/Pacific Islander group has shown the most fluctuation from year to year. African-Americans continue their decline from a high of 7% in Fall 2004 to 5% in Fall 2007.

Citizenship

In Fall 2007, slightly more than three quarters of first-time college students were U.S. citizens. Thirteen percent of new students were permanent residents. Compared to the percentages for the college, proportionally more first-time students are U.S. citizens and fewer are permanent residents. Since Fall 2005, there has been a small increase in the percentage of U.S. citizens and a slight decrease in the percentage of permanent residents.

Education Level

Education level reflects a student's highest level of education upon admission to PCC. In 2007, close to 88% of first-time college students came to PCC having graduated from a U.S. or foreign high school, or having completed high school equivalent education (GED or high school proficiency exam). Over the past four years, the percentage of first-time college students who were U.S. high school graduates remained between 78% and 79%; and the percentage first-time college students who were foreign high school graduates remained at approximately 6%.

Educational Goal

Educational goal represents a student’s reason for enrolling in PCC and is collected at the time of admission. In previous years, most categories have been relatively stable. The percentage of first-time college students working towards a terminal AA degree peaked in Fall 2004 and has rapidly declined since then (see Table 3-8). From 2004 to Fall 2007, there has been an increase in the percentage of students indicating that their goal is to transfer with an AA/AS.

It is important to note that a student may change his/her educational goal at anytime. The reported data reflect a student’s educational goal collected at the time of admission, but it may have been changed since then.
